PREFACE

While the present bibliography was compiled as a catalogue-guide to the library exhibit at the Indianapolis Convention (December 28, 1935-January 1, 1936), it is hoped that it may serve a much wider constituency as a reference help. In any use to be made of it, however, certain principles guiding the selection of titles should be kept in mind. It is definitely selective; only publications in the English language of the quadrennium 1932-1935 were included in the exhibit. This time limit accounts in some measure for a certain lack of balance in the number of entries under the various headings. Further, the exhibit was prepared for a conference composed in large part of North American students, and with a program dealing with some thirty seminar subjects on missions and related topics.

No attempt has been made to state or to interpret basic positions of Christianity, nor does the inclusion of any title indicate acceptance of the point of view expressed by the book.

To simplify entries, where a work has more than one author only the first is entered; whenever possible, the American publisher is noted; and if two prices are quoted, the first one indicates a paper binding, the second a cloth.

For their generous cooperation in providing books for the exhibit at Indianapolis thanks are due to
